TEXAS REGIONAL CITY.

Some of our diligent Representatives in Congress are telling us that the only way for Texas to obtain one of the regional banks is for all to unite on one city. That will be impossible in the first place, and it ought to be impossible. The location of these institutions is not to be a matter of political pull or favor. We doubt if one Texas Congressman has considered the factors which enter into a city's eligibility for one of these banks, and there is not the slightest reason why any Texas Congressman or the entire delegation should be consulted.—Houston Post.

We would have little respect for the commissioners who are to choose the regional bank cities if they would yield to any political influence. The united appeal of all the people of Texas should have no effect upon them.
Their selections are to be made from the standpoint of commercial service without regard to State lines. Arguments to avail must show the qualifications of the city applying and all that citizens can do is to present the facts.

Congressmen who urge Texas cities to get together are merely seeking to avoid the political embarrassment of advocating one city in preference to another.—Fort Worth Record.

The Eagle does not take it that the Texas Congressmen in giving the advice they did, meant there should be any political pull used in securing the location of one of the regional banks, but rather a business pull. Texas Congressmen realize the great benefit it will be to Texas to have one of these banks, and that the State may be sure to get it, they urge the banking interests to get together. Our Congressmen are cognizant of the fact that he bankers of Texas absolutely know what city in the State is best fitted and best equipped for such location, and that patriotic motives will actuate all to unite on this one city in order to secure the prize sought.

To be sure the commissioners whose duty it is to locate these regional reserve banks will not listen nor be influenced by any political pull, but a united recommendation from the banking and business interests of Texas for one certain city would have great weight with the commission when it holds its sitting in Houston.
Such a course would almost beyond question secure one of the banks for Texas, while if five or six cities appear before the commission in a scramble for the location, the probabilities are Texas would lose out. This is evidently what the Texas Congressmen meant by urging a uniting of the business interests of the State.

THE SOURCE OF PROSPERITY.

The corn growers of the Middle West, the cotton growers of the South and the sugar growers of Louisiana are feeling the effect of the reduced tariff, but we hear no grunt of satisfaction from the consumers.—Fort Worth Record.

The Record forgets, as do many others, that the corn growers of the Middle West, the cotton growers of the South and the sugar growers of Louisiana, are both the producers and the consumers. There can be no prosperity in this country except when the products of the farm bring high prices.
None will deny but that the farm is the source of all our wealth; then it stands to reason that the higher the price of the products of the farm the greater the wealth and the greater the prosperity. When farm products are high, labor is high, everything else is high, money is plentiful and the people are prosperous. When farm products are low, wages are low, there's no money in the country, business is stagnated and it is almost impossible to make a dollar in any kind of business or profession. Give the country high priced farm products and other things will regulate themselves.

Champ Clark says he lectures strictly for the money there is in it, but does not lecture while Congress is in session. That's Champ's style, brusque, bold, honest, open. His motto is, "A bird in hand is the noblest work of God."

THE STORE FOR VALUES IN MEN'S WEAR

The Waxahachie Light says: "In a recent address before the Indiana Press Association the wife of the Governor said: 'Every editor likes a woman who can give him fried chicken, good hot biscuits and peach cobbler.'"

We don't doubt it, but what would the wife think of the husband if she has to provide the aforesaid articles?

Let the husbands do the providing and there are very few wives who will not see to it that whatever he provides is placed before him in an appetizing and tempting style.

As the street paving work proceeds, we note a large number of "sons of rest" watching the job to see that it is well done. Is there something wrong, or something out of joint?

There should be work here for everybody.

What has become of the old fashioned young man who used to make good by marrying his employer's daughter and succeeding to the business?

NOTICE TO ALL PRAETORIANS.

There will be a regular meeting of Council No. 612 Thursday night, January 8. All are urged to be present.
Mr. and Mrs. Davidson will be with us, and some initiation work to do.
Be sure and come.
